

'Gay and Vine' Days Recalled In New Column

DO you remember when the cream of Nashville society used to pass the corner of Gay and Vine Streets to and from various functions? You may not, for that was before the turn of the 1900's. Since that time Vine Street has been renamed Seventh Avenue, North, and the area has undergone a change.

However a former Nashville resident, Mrs. Louisa Cooke Don-Carlos, recalls those days, and she has written a series of columns which will be presented in THE BANNER each week, starting Wednesday.

Born in Louisville, Ky., in 1874, the former Louisa Cooke moved to Nashville with her parents before she was 3 years old. She attended Ward-Beimont College and Peabody College and received her M.A. degree from the University of Kansas. She was married to H. E. Don-Carlos in 1891.

The former Nashvillian, who now makes her home in Lawrence, Kan., tells in a vivid and entertaining style the happenings in Tennessee's capital during those days just before the turn of the century. Don't forget to look for the "Corner of Gay and Vine" in Wednesday's edition. It will not only refresh the memory of older Nashvillians but it will entertain, inform, and possibly amuse their sons and daughters.
